

WOW Media — Hero & Partnership Strip

Design brief for web designer | Reference site: emotiv.com

Goal: match the premium, dark, technical feel and colour palette of emotiv.com, but with a different layout and a different signature visual so the page is clearly ours and not a copy. Keep our existing Conscience IQ brand fonts.

1. Colours

Match emotiv.com's palette. Use a colour-picker tool on the live site to confirm exact values — the values below are close approximations:

Background (page)	Near-black navy	#0A0E17
Panel / section navy	Slightly lighter navy	#0F1626
Accent (glow / buttons)	Electric cyan	#00C6D7
Primary text	White	#FFFFFF
Muted text (subtitles, captions)	Light grey	#9AA7B4

Use cyan sparingly and deliberately — as a sharp accent, not everywhere.

2. Fonts

Keep our CIQ brand system. This is one way our page looks different from Emotiv even with the same colours.

Role	Font
Headlines	Poppins (Semibold / Bold)
Body copy & buttons	Mulish (or Inter if unavailable)

3. Section 1 — Hero (full screen, dark background)

Layout

Left-aligned, not centred. (Emotiv centres everything — going left-aligned instantly makes ours feel different and more “engineered / editorial.”)

- Left side: headline, sub-line, two buttons.

- Right side: an animated element — a moving biometric signal line / waveform (like an EEG or heartbeat trace) in cyan on the dark background. This ties to what Conscience IQ actually does (reading the human signal). If animation isn't possible at first, a static glowing waveform graphic is fine.
- Optional: a thin cyan “scan line” divider at the bottom of the hero.

HEADLINE (large, Poppins Bold, white):

Intelligence that understands people.

SUB-LINE (Mulish, light grey, smaller):

We design and engineer AI software that reads the human signal – from Conscience IQ's readiness platform to the products, interfaces and machine-learning systems we build for our clients. Fifteen years a production house. Now an AI company.

Two buttons (pill / outline style like Emotiv's):

Button 1 (solid cyan)	See what we build
Button 2 (outline, white border)	Start a project

CREDIBILITY LINE (optional, small text under the buttons):

Development partner to Conscience IQ – in the ShelterZoom ecosystem.

4. Section 2 — Partnership Strip (directly under the hero)

Modelled on Emotiv's “Trusted by Fortune 500” strip — but with one key difference: Emotiv shows anonymous logos with no names. We do the opposite — we name our partners, because the names are the whole point.

EYEBROW LABEL (small, cyan, uppercase, letter-spaced, above the logos):

IN THE SHELTERZOOM ECOSYSTEM

Logo row (4 names, evenly spaced, white/grey so they sit cleanly on the dark background):

Conscience IQ	ShelterZoom	SB C&S (SoftBank Group)	The Kenton Group
---------------	-------------	-------------------------	------------------

SENTENCE (centred, under the logos, light grey text):

WOW Media is the software and creative development partner behind Conscience IQ – a strategic partner of ShelterZoom, the Gartner-recognised cybersecurity innovator, which stands alongside SB C&S, a SoftBank Group company, and the UK's Kenton Group.

■ IMPORTANT wording note: keep this sentence exactly as written. Do NOT shorten it to "partnered with SoftBank." The accurate chain (through Conscience IQ and ShelterZoom) is what makes it credible.

5. How ours should differ from Emotiv (inspired, not copied)

- Left-aligned hero (Emotiv is centred).
- Signature element = a cyan biometric waveform / signal line (Emotiv uses a brain video).
- Named, explained partner strip (Emotiv uses anonymous logos).
- Poppins + Mulish type gives a different personality with the same colours.

Same mood, same colours — different layout, different signature, our fonts.
